special House subcommittee, have said the investigation was dropped because of political pressure from high places. They never have elaborated.

One letter, dated Nov. 30, 1953 from Rafter to Hoffa said: "Wint told me today that he certainly got in bad with Hoffman the staff by having gone along with me in his treatment of my Friday."

"I, of course, expressed my appreciation to him and told him that I have always thought no one had to worry very much about doing the right thing."

A March 11, 1954, letter from Rafter to Hoffa said Smith had refused to sign a contempt citation against Hoffa prepared by Hoffman.

There was also a March 31, 1954 letter from Smith to Rafter which said:

"I have heard nothing more about any contempt citation for Hoffa, and I think it is a dead issue."

new era of Arab history."

He said that the six parts of his plan should be acted on together as integral elements of a single, concentrated peace package.

In dealing with economic stabilization of the Middle East, Eisenhower urged that U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld consult immediately with Arab nations to find out whether agreement can be reached on creation of an Arab development institution on a regional basis.

He did not estimate how much money should be put into this program at the start.

However, some informed authorities said they believe the fund should get under way with about a 100 million dollar kitty. The money would be contributed not only by some of the outside nations but by some of the oil-rich Middle East countries.

The President spoke today as the United States was pulling the first of 15,000 American troops out of Lebanon—a Marine battalion of about 1,700. He pledged anew there will be a total pullout "whenever this is requested by the duly constituted government of Lebanon or whenever, through action by the United Nations or otherwise, Lebanon is no longer exposed to the original danger."

Calling world attention to the tense situation in that tiny kingdom, Eisenhower warned that "indirect aggression discernible in Jordan may lead to conflicts endangering the peace." He did not fix blame to this, but said consequences of a far-reaching nature could result.

Eisenhower proposed fast general assembly action on the parts of his program dealing with the peace force, Lebanon, Jordan and the curbing of subversive propaganda. The regional economic development plan and arms control he left for handling through other U.N. machinery.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko got the jump on the United States Tuesday by submitting a resolution calling for immediate withdrawal of U. S. forces from Lebanon and British troops from Jordan, for expansion of the U.N. observer group in Lebanon and for establishment of a similar unit in Jordan.

Observers were surprised at the mild tone of the Soviet resolution, which omitted the usual aggression charges.

Informants said Secretary of State Dulles considered the Soviet proposal encouraging, but felt it was unacceptable in the United States because it implied that current Middle East tension resulted from British and American intervention.

Dulles met with Gromyko on the Middle East situation. It was understood the American secretary hoped to determine whether the Soviet Union was ready to call off the indirect aggression which Dulles charges the Communists are using to push their influence in the Middle East.

The British were understood to feel that the Soviet resolution was moderate, but that Britain and the United States already had offered to pull out their forces provided some U.N. substitute could be arranged.

The British reportedly feel that the U.N. role proposed by the Soviet Union does not go far enough and makes no provision for preserving the territorial integrity of Lebanon and Jordan.

The Soviet proposal is expected to win strong support from the 28-nation Asian-African group.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — President Eisenhower goes before the U.N. General Assembly's emergency session today to spell out a proposed program for stabilizing the Middle East through mobile U.N. troops, financial aid and a curb on hate propaganda.

In his first appearance before the world body since he made his atom-for-peace proposal five years ago, Eisenhower was to place before the 60 other nations an outline for:

1. Establishment of a permanent U.N. force to stop threats of aggression or subversion in any Middle East country.

2. Creation of a U.N. commission to report any propaganda broadcasts seeking to build up hatreds such as the United Arab Republic's broadcasts in a 14-nation neighbor states to overthrow their royal rulers.

3. A U.N. declaration repealing the Assembly's 1950 resolution calling on all nations to refrain Johnson, eyeing the margin separating him and Millwee, said: "At this point I'm just praying."

The Crosett attorney added that the vote he received was the result of work of his friends since he had campaigned just "one week, since the death of my mother."

Millwee, who considers De Queen his home town, declined to issue a statement.

In an election eve appearance, Millwee called for close consideration of his own record. He said Johnson was using the same tactics he had used unsuccessfully against Faubus two years ago.

Johnson charged that national publications had abused Arkansas and that his opposition was not trying to destroy him but what he stood for.

All branches of government must stand back-to-back against federal domination, he said.

Smith, a Little Rock attorney sought to use last year's integration crisis in his race against McFaddin, a native of Hope.

He said McFaddin's judicial dissent in a case involving a man arrested by the military during the height of the Little Rock crisis was a blow to civil liberties.

McFaddin countered that Griffin had omitted important words in quoting from the dissent. The justice said he had merely felt that a civilian assisted by the military should be tied in civil court and not in military court.

the moon back to earth. Should the probe actually orbit the moon, this television type equipment would provide the first crude photographs of the far side of the moon, the side that is never visible from earth.

The lunar probe also will carry equipment to measure the impact of particles in space and gauge the gravitational field of the earth and the moon.

A requisite for a lunar probe is an escape from the earth's gravitational field. To accomplish this the missile must attain a speed of 25,000 miles an hour.

Although the chances of a successful launching and of an escape from the earth are believed to be fairly good, the probe also will have rockets to adjust it to the proper speed and direction to attain a lunar orbit if it gets close enough to the moon.

Miss Alice Ann Anthony Becomes Bride of Joe Phillip Watkins In Home Wedding Saturday

In an informal ceremony Saturday evening, August 9, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ralph Anthony, Miss Alice Ann Anthony pledged her marriage vows to Joe Phillip Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Watkins, Lake Catherine, Hot Springs.

The double-ring ceremony took place at 7:00 o'clock, with the Rev. R. G. Sorrells, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating. Robert Anthony of Murfreesboro, pianist, and Mrs. Wilford Lee White, vocalist, both cousins of the bride, presented the nuptial music.

The bride wore an original suit imported beige silk with a small white hat, trimmed with a slight off-the-face veil. Her other accessories were in beige and she carried a white bridal Bible topped Miss Sara Frances Adeox of El Dorado was her only attendant. She wore an aqua blue frock of silk organza, styled along princess lines, with harmonizing accessories and carried a nosegay of pink roses.

After a brief wedding trip, the couple will live at 1212 E. 14th St., Texarkana, Ark., where he will be a member of the coaching staff of Jefferson Avenue Junior High School.

Miss Sue Moses Marries John Marvin Freeman In Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Sue Moses to John Marvin Freeman was solemnized at four o'clock Sunday afternoon, August 10, in the First Baptist Church. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perry Moses, Hope, and Mr. and Mrs. Vester Green Freeman, Arkadelphia. Dr. John McCallanahan performed the double ring ceremony.

Arrangements of white gladiolas and jade fern softly lighted by white cathedral tapers in branched candelabras entwined with Southern smilax graced the altar.

Music was presented by Mrs. Roger Pearce Lawson, Ruston, La., vocalist and sister of the bride, accompanied by Roger Pearce Lawson, Mrs. Lawson's numbers included "Through The Years," "Youmans," "Because," "d'Harlelot," "The Lord's Prayer," "Malotte," "Among Mr. Lawson's selections were "Serenade," Schubert; "Liebestraum," Liszt; "Traumeri," by Schumann, and "To A Wild Rose," MacDowell. Mrs. Lawson wore a blue lace waltz length dress and corsage of pink pom mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of embroidered tulle taffeta designed and made by her mother. The basque bodice was cut with deep V scalloped neckline and petite sleeves and fastened to the waist in the back with tiny buttons. The bouffant skirt fell open in the back revealing a cascade of ethereal tulle ruffles. A half hat of iridescent sequins held in place her fingertip veil of imported French illusion. The bride carried a white Bible topped with a purple throned white orchid, stephanotis, and English ivy. Her only ornament was a family locket.

Miss Mary Judith Moser of Beaumont, Texas, was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Judy Gail Freeman of Arkadelphia, sister of the groom, was junior maid of honor. Mrs. Larry Moses, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Mary Charlene Horton were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore similar waltz-length dresses fashioned with boat necklines which dipped off-shoulder to form a deep V in the back. The waists were elongated to a point in the front and back interest was created with circular bustles over the full skirts. Each wore matching bow bandeaux, and they carried cascade arrangements of pom mums and English ivy. The maids of honor wore peal pink dresses and the bridesmaids ice blue.

Richard C. Calhoun served as best man, and completing the wedding party were groomsmen-ushers Benjamin W. Hathaway, James Shori, Robert C. Lowry, all of Arkadelphia, and Billy Carl Ferguson, of Bluffton.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Moses wore a beige linen sheath with matching lace duster and blue velvet hat. A corsage of blue pom mums was pinned at her shoulder. Mrs. Freeman, mother of the groom, selected a navy sheer dress with navy accessories, and she wore a corsage of pink pom mums.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Ched Hall assisted by Mrs. Louis Bandy, DeQueen, aunts of the bride, entertained with a reception in the Hall home. Arrangements of white gladiolas and stock were used in the reception rooms. The bride's table was covered with satin overlaid with net. In the center was the tiered bride's cake and the bridesmaids' bouquets were used for decoration.

Mrs. Henry Haynes and Mrs. Frank Horton introduced guests to the receiving line. Alternating in serving were Mrs. P. L. Perkins, Mrs. M. S. Bates, Mrs. Tom McLarty Sr., Mrs. A. A. Abritton, and Mrs. S. A. Whitlow, Little Rock.

Assisting in the serving rooms were Misses Linda Halbert, Marcia Bowden and Janet McKenzie, Mrs. A. C. Sinyard, Miss Willie Jo Pierce, Arkadelphia and Mrs. Glen Williams, Little Rock. Mrs. Ronald Nations, Kingsport, Tenn., Mary Ann Hall.

Dispensing hospitalities were Mrs. Jim McKenzie, Mrs. Harry Shiver, Mrs. W. Y. Foster, Mrs. Charles Reynerson and Mrs. Hubert Thrash. Miss Mary Anita Lancaster was in charge of the guest book.

Later when the couple left for a honeymoon in the Ozarks, Mrs. Freeman was wearing a copen blue raw silk sheath with chemise jacket and matching velvet and feather hat. Her accessories were navy blue. She pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet at her shoulder.

The couple will be at home in Arkadelphia until December, when Lt. Freeman will report for duty with the Quartermaster Corps at Fort Lee, Va.

Out of town guests attending the wedding and reception included: Miss Edna Earle Hall, San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Powell, Junction City; Mr. and R. W. Lawson, Ruston, La.; Mrs. Ronald Nations, Kingsport, Tenn.; Miss Jo Ann Hart, Baytown, Texas; Miss Marjo Jean McDonald, Pine Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Glass, Magnolia; Mrs. W. M. Calhoun and Joe Calhoun, Malvern; Glen L. Williams, Little Rock; Mrs. Elmhurst Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lowry, Miss Marilyn Stuckey, Miss Brenda Hips, B. W. Business Tries to Spike Word, Ruble Drive

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The American businessman as well as the American diplomat is spreading the story of our type of economy to counteract the Soviet words and rubles drive.

The debate under way today in the U.N. General Assembly shows our diplomats aren't universally approved abroad. American business has had its sad times abroad, too.

But in recent years there have been sharp changes in American business practices overseas.

On the propaganda front a number of U.S. business organizations are in there pitching.

On the more subtle personal relations front, many U.S. corporations are trying to better understanding with their foreign hosts or customers.

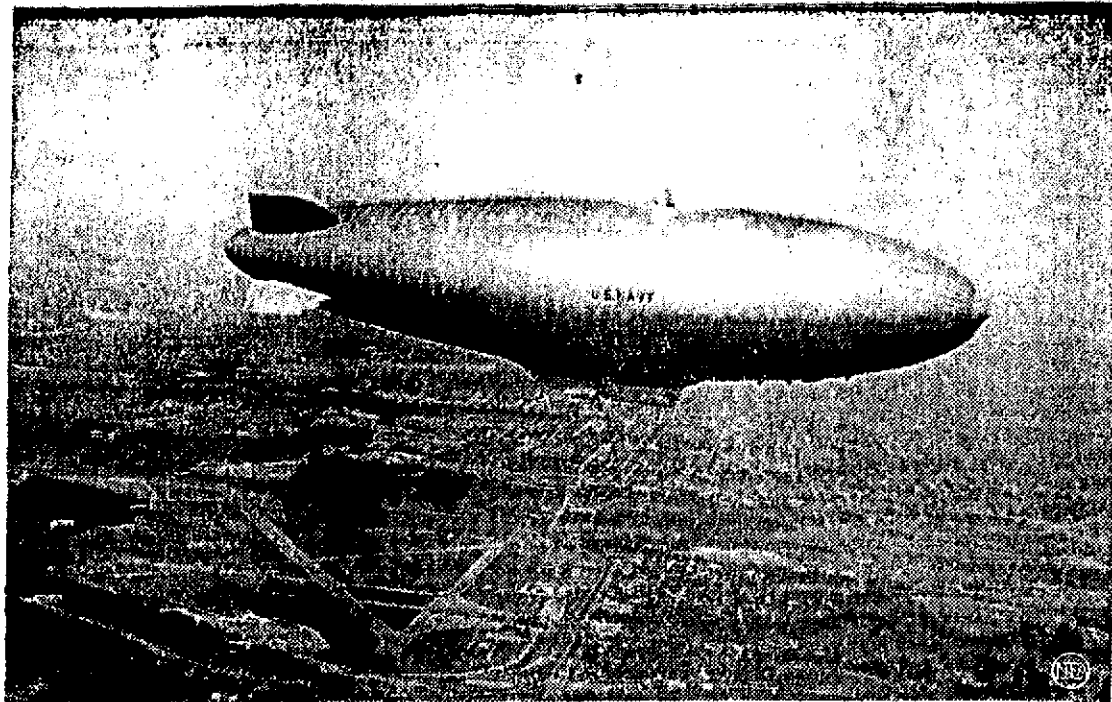

In a direct challenge to Soviet propaganda against the so-called evils of capitalism as practiced here and abroad, the Advertising Council has waged a campaign to sell the world on the merits of what it calls "the people's capitalism." More recently it has launched a drive to convince Americans as well as others that under our system the future of this country is economically bright indeed.

The National Foreign Trade Council has tackled specific practices and urged changes in both our policies and those of other lands if the American investor is to increase his holdings further.

These sums have more than doubled since the war and now are around $25 billion dollars.

American corporations are still widely assailed by the Soviet as exploiters of the foreign lands whatever may have been the motives of the previous century in tapping resources abroad, today's corporations are quite a different breed.

Sitting nervously on the sidelines as the U.N. debates the Middle East struggle are American oil companies with huge stakes there. These firms long ago adopted there, in Venezuela and elsewhere, a plan whereby the proceeds were split 50-50 with the country where they found oil. Some newcomers of late have sweetened this take for the host PICKET PATROL—The ZPG-3W, first of a new and larger class of nonrigid airships for Airborne Early Warning (AEW) picket patrol far at sea, makes its initial flight over the Akron (O.) Municipal Airport. Built by Goodyear Aircraft for the U.S. Navy, the ZPG-3W is the world's largest blimp, with a reported capacity of 1½ million cubic feet. Concealed within the envelope, or "bag," is the largest revolving radar antenna ever carried by any type of aircraft. Number of new blimps on order has not been disclosed.

The oil companies, in preaching the American doctrine, have set up model towns with schools and hospitals, helped raise the standard of living of many other lands.

Big American automobile companies have opened plants abroad.

A chief reason naturally was to take advantage of special production, distribution and foreign exchange benefits. But a big side-line has been the raising of standards of living of other lands and a brushing off of some of the American doctrine that U.S. business can produce without exploitation.

Youths, Stolen Auto Caught

MALVERN, Ark. (AP)—A high speed chase through a residential section here ended yesterday when a quick thinking local official blocked an intersection.

Police Chief Bill Funk said two Texas youths in a stolen car fleeing a motorcycle policeman were captured when Circuit Clerk Peniston Stanley saw the chase and blocked an intersection with his pickup truck.

The motorcycle policeman, Pete Sesser, began the 110-mile per hour pursuit on the city limits after a resident of nearby Donaldson reported that two boys had tried to sell a car "for anything they could get."

Funk said the youths—one 17 and the other 16 years of age—were being held for Louisiana authorities. He said the car had been stolen Sunday in New Orleans.

Both boys were on parole from Texas juvenile authorities, Funk said.

Second Sub Makes Way Under Pole

By PAUL DUKE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States staked a new claim to mastery of undersea pioneering today after a second atomic submarine had crossed under the North Pole.

The U. S. S. Skate reached the pole at 8:47 p. m. (EST) Monday—just six days after its older sister, the Nautilus, emerged from a historic 1,830-mile trip across the polar cap. The Nautilus arrived Tuesday in Portland, England, and got a big welcome.

The Navy released word of the Skate's achievement Tuesday night without any fanfare—in a two paragraph statement. This contrasted sharply with the special White House ceremony arranged last Friday to announce the Nautilus' voyage.

The bare announcement said the Skate surfaced in an ice field some 40 miles from the North Pole to radio word of the trip. The Navy said the Skate, the third U. S. atomic sub built, was continuing under-ice explorations.

The Skate's path to the pole was just the opposite from the Nautilus, which began its journey from the Pacific. The 265-foot long Skate left New London, Conn. July 30 and entered from the Atlantic.

As with the Nautilus, Navy officials did nothing to call attention to the military significance of the transpolar trips. President Eisenhower cited the Nautilus' achievement as pointing the way toward a new commercial seaway between the world's two major oceans.

But the military importance of the feat was made plain in remarks by Sens. Prescott Bush, (R-Conn) and Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM).

Bush, telling the Senate of the Skate's trip, spoke of the Navy's delivery of a "one-two punch."

Anderson said the submarines may have given the United States the means of preventing war.

"We now have vast new ocean areas from which to wage war," Anderson said.

"There our submarines can hide, can remain undetected for long periods of time, and can fire missiles at anyone who dares to attack us."

The United States currently is building a fleet of 33 atomic subs. These include three already in service, several soon to go into service and others in the process of construction or on the authorization list.

Cmdr. James F. Calvert, a veteran submarine officer who graduated from Annapolis in 1942, is the Skate's skipper. The Navy said 10 officers, 87 enlisted men and 9 civilian technicians are making the Arctic trip. The Skate is expected to return to New London this month through the Atlantic.

Another Big New York Jewel Robbery

NEW YORK (AP)—Theft of $27,000 in jewels from a hotel lobby showcase, matching in daring the burglary of $163,000 in gems from Tiffany's on Sunday, was disclosed today.

The $27,000 in gems was stolen three weeks ago from a display by the Van Cleef & Arpels jewelry firm in the lobby of the Hotel Plaza, but the theft had not been made public.

The hotel is two blocks from Tiffany's.

The thieves got away with the loot—diamond and gold earrings, gold cigarette cases and compacts—although the showcase is prominently displayed, brightly illuminated and under almost constant guard.

The burglars obtained $163,000 in diamonds from Tiffany's by breaking thick shatterproof display windows.

"There was to be a concert by the University String Quartet at Grey Hall. I went there, but there had been a power failure, and the concert was postponed. I walked around town for a while, and finally went to the library. As long as I was down town, I used the evening to do some research for a paper I am writing."

"Thank you. I appreciate your help."

"You're welcome. If there is anything more I can do, feel free to call on me."

Morrison was sure that the faculty hadn't mentioned his presence, but he was conscious of the inquiring glances of the pupils as he walked down the hall. The grapevine flowered early, even among young humans.

Senses had seen him coming and had the engine running. "I haven't had an audience like this since I won a pie-eating contest when I was in the fifth grade," he said, mellowing toward the playground fence.

There were at least 20 children standing almost motionless, expelling them with the same interest they would have given a strange bus.

Morrison looked and sighed. "Well, get on out here. They act like we were a couple of freaks."

ZEE GREAT LOVAIR—The torn undershirt school of acting may be in trouble if the Great Lover type finds favor again with the feminine fans. Louis Jourdan essays the new (for him) role in the forthcoming MGM musical "Gigi," in which he gives the treatment, above, to Leslie Cañon. Jourdan plays a rich and bored French playboy in the film. "It's the first time I've ever played such a fellow," Jourdan says.

Chapter XV

Higbee sat down and pulled a pipe from his pocket. "You want to talk about Bruce, of course?"

"Yes. I'd like your opinion of him."

"The boy was pathetic. There was no doubting the earnestness of the man's words."

"Pathetic?" Morrison echoed in surprise. There had been many words used to describe Bruce, but pathetic was a new one.

"To strive for something when there is no chance of accomplishing it, is always pathetic."

"He loved music with a passion that was hard to conceive in one so young. It was the only thing in the world that mattered to him. Everything else that he did, he did because he had to, like eating, or sleeping."

The man was almost embarrassingly intense; in fact, he showed signs of making a speech. "Well, lots of people love music. I enjoy it myself."

"That's just my point," Higbee said. It seemed that around him there to just listen, and enjoy it. He wanted to create, to write and play it, but he was completely without talent. He had no sense of pitch, almost tone-deaf as a matter of fact, and no sense of rhythm at all, but he had enough determination for 10 children. It was just as I said before, actually pathetic.

"I have students who could develop into wonderful performers, one that might even be great, but they won't practice. Bruce practiced as faithfully as anyone could and he didn't stand a chance of being even passable."

"I was told that he played in the orchestra," Morrison offered.

Higbee had put his hand to his face and kneaded the skin between the thumb and forefinger. It seemed that around him there was always movement of some sort.

"Yes," he admitted, "but that is because of the feeling among educators that a child should not be discouraged in what he wants to do. I have listened to many arguments on the subject, and I must say I can't agree with them."

"I don't know much about the theories of modern education," Morrison said.

"I'm afraid that I judge mostly from my own case. My father wanted me to be a concert pianist, almost as much as I wanted to be one. I studied my heart out for years. It wasn't until later that I found my teachers had told my father that I would be a very good pianist; I just didn't have the spark to be a great one, but no one told me. I'll never forget the day I realized that I could never be anything more than second-rate. I thought my reason for living was gone forever." The set of the man's thin face showed that the memory was still a painful one.

"That was why I understood Bruce so well. He was going to have to face the time when he would know that all the work he did wouldn't make up for lack of talent."

Morrison revised his opinion of the man somewhat. He was truly distressed at what the future had held for Bruce.

Higbee sat in a more relaxed manner. "Sometimes the inequalities of life make one wonder if there is any pattern to it at all."

Morrison had no time to go into philosophy, so he interrupted with, "Aside from his being a poor musician, what was Bruce like?"

"He was a fine lad. Easy to please, and never caused any trouble."

"Can you think of any reason why someone might have held a grudge against him or disliked him intensely?"

"I doubt if Bruce had an enemy in the world."

"All right. Now if you will tell me where you were the night before last, I'll let you go."

"You want an alibi from me?" Higbee exploded. Morrison felt as if he had asked Wagner to conduct a session of rock and roll.

The teacher was somewhat mollified, but he still felt a little un-

Integration Question in Two Races

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Men on the exact opposite side of the integration question were on top today in political races in New York's Harlem and in Arkansas.

Integrationist Adam Clayton Powell was an easy victor in Harlem over another Negro, Earl Brown, for the Democratic nomination for Powell's seat in the House.

Segregationist Jim Johnson held a narrow lead over Justice Minor Millyee in his efforts to replace Millyee on the bench of Arkansas' Supreme Court.

Opposing views, to were in evidence in still a third primary election. This one, in Idaho, featured a photo finish race between State Sen. A. M. Derr and Max Hanson, a wheat farmer, for the Democratic governor nomination.

These two leaders in a field of four candidates had argued over bringing legalized gambling back to Idaho. Derr wants it. Hanson doesn't.

The winner will run against Republican Gov. Robert E. Smylie. Politicians regarded Powell's victory as the most significant contest nationally.

They felt it provided at least an indicator of how Negroes themselves line up on whether integration should be fast or slow.

Woman Barred From Voting, Will Sue

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ark. (AP)

A Mountain Home woman said last night she would file a civil rights suit because she was barred from voting in yesterday's Democratic primary.

Miss Mary Pat Steele said election officials refused to let her and her mother, Mrs. Ruth E. Steele, vote in Mountain Home Township after they declined to sign an oath to support all Democratic nominees in the November general election.

Printed copies of the oath were supplied to election officials by the

Figures Everybody is a Poor Driver

ANN ARBOR (AP)—You're a poor driver. So is everybody else. At least that's the opinion of Joseph Zabelski. He's a safety education consultant for the Automobile Club of Michigan, and says nobody really is a very good driver.

"You can turn out skillful drivers but even they have their moments," he said. "In fact about 95 per cent of the good drivers have accidents. They get bored with driving and tend to become distracted."

He spoke at a University of Michigan conference on driver education.

Baxter County Democratic Committee with instructions to have them signed by anyone the officials thought had supported Republican candidates in a previous election.

Several persons refused to sign the oaths and were not allowed to vote.

Miss Steele said she would file suit in federal district court against four Mountain Home Township election officials and three officials of the county Democratic committee. She said she would charge that her civil liberties were violated.

Miss Steele said she voted unchallenged in the July 29 first Democratic primary.
